

Error in display of some Present Weather symbols on Synoptic Charts

Please be aware that from July 2013 onwards there is a known issue affecting the accuracy of present weather symbols on synoptic charts held within the Daily Weather Summary.

Symbols for rain have, in a number of instances, been incorrectly substituted with symbols representing sleet. Other present weather symbols may also have been affected. Please note all other information on Synoptic Charts remains correct.

Significant Weather Charts are unaffected, all information and symbols are correct.

We apologise for any inconvenience and are currently working towards a solution.