++ Valid for broadcast at 0858

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
Snow showers will affect northwestern parts of the United Kingdom today and tonight, with these mainly over high ground in Scotland. Other parts of the UK will see rain showers, these most frequent in the west but possible in all areas. It will become very windy in the northwest tonight and will remain cold, with ice and frost in places.

Outlook for Wednesday and Thursday:

Windy on Wednesday with more wintry showers in northwestern areas, but brighter elsewhere, especially in the south. Thursday will be very windy with severe gales in Scotland. Rain will affect most areas and there will be snow on Scottish hills.
