Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
Rain and strong winds in the far southeast of England will soon clear leaving a drier day with plenty of sunshine for most. Winds will be much lighter generally but it will be breezy around northern and eastern coasts, where a few showers are possible. It will feel a little colder with winds from the north.

Outlook for Tuesday and Wednesday:
A wet start on Tuesday with a band of rain moving across the UK. Bright spells and showers will follow and last into Wednesday for many but heavy rain is expected to affect southern areas later in the day. It will stay windy throughout.
