

Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0700 on Tuesday 02 Oct 2012

++ Valid for broadcast at 0858

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
Heavy showers or rain in the west will spread southeast with a risk of thunder at times. Rather cloudy, but some sunny spells in the east at first and between showers. Windy throughout with gales on coasts and hills at times. Overnight, rain or showers will continue, perhaps heavy. Later, clear spells may develop inland.

Outlook for Wednesday and Thursday:

Another windy day on Wednesday with scattered showers, heaviest in the north and west with a risk of thunder. Some longer outbreaks of rain are possible in the far south of England. Further showers on Thursday, but winds will ease with the showers fading later.

(C) Crown Copyright 2012. Published by the Met Office.