Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:

A rather cloudy day, particularly across central parts, and northwest Scotland where there will also be outbreaks of rain throughout much of the day. However, some bright or sunny spells may develop later, particularly across southern England. Winds will be generally light, except in the far south where it will be rather breezy.

Outlook for Thursday and Friday:

It is likely to remain rather cloudy but generally dry. Temperatures should stay close to, or slightly below, average, with a chance of overnight frosts wherever skies clear. Winds will also remain generally light, but it will be breezy in the far south at first.
