Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
A band of persistent sleet and snow will affect much of Wales, central and eastern parts of England, giving some large accumulations of snow in places with some disruption expected. Across southern areas it will be less cold but with local gales and blustery showers in the south. Scotland and the far north of England mainly dry, bright and cold.

Outlook for Monday and Tuesday:
Monday will be wet and windy for a time in the south with some sleet possible across the higher ground in the southeast. Elsewhere plenty of sunshine but with some showers in the north and west. Tuesday dry and bright.
