++ Valid for broadcast at 0858

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
Cloudy with outbreaks of light rain across parts of northern and eastern England at first but this becoming confined to the south-east. Elsewhere will see some sunny spells but also some showers breaking out and some may be locally heavy with thunder. Becoming dry overnight for much of the UK but rain edging across Northern Ireland and north-west Scotland.

Outlook for Sunday and Monday:
Much of the UK will see dry conditions with sunny spells on Sunday and Monday and becoming very warm too. However, there is likely to be more cloud across Northern Ireland and Scotland with light rain. Cooler in these areas too.
