++ Valid for broadcast at 0858

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
The far north-west of the UK will see wet and windy conditions developing through the day. Dry with bright or sunny spells in southern and central England and east Wales, with cloudier conditions and light rain elsewhere. Overnight, rain spreads south-eastwards, with blustery, occasionally wintry showers following into the north-west.

Outlook for Wednesday and Thursday:

Wednesday sees sunshine and blustery showers affecting the north, while a band of rain, heavy in places, affects the south. On Thursday, windy, showery conditions continue in the north, these wintry in the far north and over high ground. Meanwhile the south will experience bright conditions and light winds.
