Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
Rain, often heavy, will move northeastwards across the country on Sunday with brighter, but showery, weather following into southern parts. It will become windy across southern, then eastern, parts with the risk of gales in places, perhaps locally severe in exposed coastal areas.

Outlook for Monday and Tuesday:

Gales and heavy rain will continue in the north on Monday. Elsewhere, sunny spells and blustery showers, some of which will be heavy. Another day of sunny spells and showers on Tuesday, some heavy and locally merging into longer spells of rain. It will remain rather windy and feel cool.
