++ Valid for broadcast at 2159

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
It will be a largely cloudy start across England and Wales with further heavy rain across southeastern parts. Drier and sunnier weather will push in from the west, reaching all areas by afternoon. Despite this, there will be a few showers in places with further rain and strengthening winds reaching the far southwest by dusk.

Outlook for Saturday and Sunday:

Saturday morning will see heavy rain push eastwards across the country with sunny spells and heavy showers following. Winds will strengthen, with gales in places and severe gales across some southern coasts. It will stay breezy and showery into Sunday although winds should ease slightly.
