Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
It will be a dry start for much of the UK but showers will soon develop. These will be heavy and perhaps thundery, from the midlands and Wales northwards. Between these showers, however, there will be some pleasantly warm sunny spells. Overnight, most places will become dry with some clear spells, however showers will continue across northern and eastern Scotland.

Outlook for Monday and Tuesday:

The mixture of pleasantly warm sunshine and scattered showers will continue on Monday and Tuesday. These showers will be mainly confined to northern and eastern parts of the UK on Monday, but will become fairly widespread once again on Tuesday.
