++ Valid for broadcast at 2159

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
Wednesday will see another fine day across central and eastern parts with plenty of sunshine and light winds. Further west though cloud will gradually thicken with outbreaks of rain arriving across Northern Ireland by midday. A few showery outbreaks will also affect Wales and south-west England during the afternoon, but it will be warm for all.

Outlook for Thursday and Friday:

Thursday will see some early rain across some southern parts but this should clear to leave another fine day, although with more cloud. In contrast, Friday will be wet and windy with rain spreading northwards, but the far north of Scotland should stay dry.
