Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
It will be a bright and breezy start for the southeast tomorrow, but there will be spells of rain pushing into the north of the UK. The rain will turn persistent and heavy at times as it steadily moves southeastwards. The winds will strengthen too, particularly across western parts.

Outlook for Friday and Saturday:

Rain, mostly confined to the south, will clear to heavy showers and some sunny spells for many through the day on Friday, although it will remain breezy. Meanwhile, Saturday will see a mixture of sunshine and blustery showers, with the risk of hail and thunder.
