Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
It is going to be a rather cloudy day for many with some patchy light rain, this mainly in the southeast and northwest. Elsewhere it should stay drier with the cloud thinning to allow for some bright intervals, most likely towards the west.

Outlook for Sunday and Monday:
Through the rest of the Easter weekend it will remain largely fine as high pressure dominates. It will be rather cloudy at times, though it should turn increasingly bright with some sunny periods by Monday, making it feel pleasant in the generally light winds. Northwestern parts will be windier with a little rain possible here.
