

Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0700 on Sunday 10 Sep 2017

++ Valid for broadcast at 0858

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
Eastern England will begin the day bright, but chilly with some mist and fog patches. However, in the west it will be cloudier and wetter as rain spreads across all parts. It will become windy with gales in the west and southwest, with frequent, heavy, thundery and squally showers following on later.

Outlook for Monday and Tuesday:

The new week will remain unsettled with Monday having another windy day with frequent, heavy and squally showers, again with the risk of hail and thunder. In comparison Tuesday will see fewer showers but cloud and rain will gather in the west again later.

(C) Crown Copyright 2017. Published by the Met Office.