

Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0700 on Sunday 17 May 2009

++ Valid for broadcast at 0858

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
Most parts will be windy with sunny spells and blustery showers. These being heavy at times with a risk of hail and thunder. Northern Scotland will be better with sunny periods and just a few showers. Occasional heavy showers will continue through the evening, but should tend to die out in the east overnight.

Outlook for Monday and Tuesday:
Monday and Tuesday will continue unsettled and windy at times. There will be some sunny spells but also further blustery showers. These could be heavy at times with a risk of hail and thunder. The showers should tend to die out in eastern parts overnight.

(C) Crown Copyright 2009. Published by the Met Office.