Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
It will be mostly dry and bright at first for England and Wales. However for Scotland and Northern Ireland, cloud and rain will spread in to north and western parts, before moving southwards into England and Wales. Feeling cold, particularly under the cloud and rain.

Outlook for Friday and Saturday:
Through Friday the persistent rain will clear south-eastwards, but blustery showers will soon follow in behind. Some of these could be on the heavy side with the risk of hail and thunder. Saturday will be a day of sunshine and showers, especially towards northern and eastern coasts. Feeling cold throughout and into the weekend.
