

Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0700 on Friday 12 Aug 2016

++ Valid for broadcast at 0858

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
Heavy and persistent rain across western parts of Scotland will continue through much of the day, where it will be windy too. North West England will be cloudy and breezy with some light rain, while further south and east it will be dry with sunny spells. The rain will gradually sink southwards through the night, easing as it goes.

Outlook for Saturday and Sunday:

Saturday will be breezy, but less so than Friday. It will be cloudy with light rain at first in the south, but it will brighten up later. The rest of the United Kingdom will see sunny spells and scattered showers.

(C) Crown Copyright 2016. Published by the Met Office.