

Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0700 on Saturday 02 Aug 2008

++ Valid for broadcast at 0858

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
Southern England and south Wales will be rather cloudy this morning with some showery rain. This will clear eastwards, then all areas will have sunshine and showers, some of these heavy, and in the north, thundery. It should feel warm in sunshine. Tonight, showers mostly dying out.

Outlook for Sunday and Monday:

Another day of sunshine and heavy showers on Sunday, again perhaps with thunder, and it will become rather breezy in the south. Monday will be bright and breezy with scattered showers, but these should be lighter and become more confined to northern and eastern areas with time.
