++ Valid for broadcast at 0858

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
It will be a mostly dry day with variable cloud breaking to allow some sunshine.
Across Western Scotland, however, it will remain wet with heavy and persistent rain. Winds will strengthen for all areas with severe gales across the northwest but it will stay mild. Similar conditions will continue overnight although the rainband will push slightly further south.

Outlook for Saturday and Sunday:

Many areas will stay rather cloudy with occasional sunshine and strong winds on Saturday with locally very mild temperatures. It will stay very wet across the far northwest. This rainband will sink south across the UK on Sunday with colder conditions following.
