Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
The strong wind and heavy rain will continue northeastwards through tomorrow.
This should clear most parts, but will linger over Scotland until after dark, with further hill snow. Warmer and brighter conditions are going to follow with occasional heavy and perhaps thundery showers, these most frequent over Northern Ireland.

Outlook for Monday and Tuesday:

For many Monday is looking like the best of the Bank Holiday weekend weather wise with a decent amount of fine and bright weather, and some warm sunny spells. However, some thundery rain may spread into the south later on, then push northwards across most parts on Tuesday.
