Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
Mist and fog will quickly clear this morning. Plenty of sunshine in most areas although it will be hazy in the far west. Eastern and central areas will tend to cloud over in the afternoon, but western parts will stay sunny. Feeling pleasantly warm in most parts, but cooler on southern and eastern coasts with a fresh onshore wind.

Outlook for Saturday and Sunday:

Another misty start in many places on Saturday followed by more sun. However in the west it will cloud over through the day with rain by afternoon, heavy in Northern Ireland. Sunday will be mainly dry but cloudier in the north.
