

Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0700 on Thursday 08 Apr 2010

++ Valid for broadcast at 0858

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
Northern Ireland, northern England and Scotland will have a somewhat cloudy day with outbreaks of mostly light rain at times. Elsewhere, it will be warm and sunny, although with a little cloud developing in the afternoon. Tonight, northern parts will continue cloudy with further rain, while the south will have clear skies and some frost in rural areas.

Outlook for Friday and Saturday:

Friday will be cloudy, cool and a little damp in the north, but further south there will be more sunshine with some cloud later on, and another cool night following. Saturday will be sunny for almost all of the UK.

(C) Crown Copyright 2010. Published by the Met Office.