

Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0700 on Tuesday 21 Aug 2012

++ Valid for broadcast at 0858

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
Sunshine and showers developing widely through the day, the showers heaviest and most frequent across the north and west, where hail and thunder are also likely. Cloudier in southeastern areas, with showery rain at times later in the day. Overnight, showers lingering in Northern Ireland and northwest Scotland, but tending to die out elsewhere.

Outlook for Wednesday and Thursday:

On Wednesday, showers and sunny spells again, the heaviest showers in Scotland and Northern Ireland with more moderate ones elsewhere. Parts of south and east England staying largely dry. On Thursday, outbreaks of rain in the north, but largely dry further south with some sunshine.

(C) Crown Copyright 2012. Published by the Met Office.