Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:

A misty, frosty start with pockets of freezing fog, but most places will be dry and sunny through the day. However, a few showers will persist near eastern and western coasts. Feeling chilly in northwesterly winds, those winds strong at times in the east.

Outlook for Thursday and Friday:

Dry and mostly sunny in many areas on Thursday, although with some showers in eastern counties, these wintry over northern hills. Cold and dry in the east at first on Friday, but becoming more unsettled from the west with rain or showers spreading slowly eastwards. Local southerly gales will develop in exposed southern coastal areas.
