Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
Today will be windy with gales across northern and western parts, this will bring showers, heavy at times. Elsewhere there will be a mix of cloud and sunny spells, though cooler and fresher than yesterday in the southeast. Tonight will be largely cloudy over the northern half of the country with showers lingering in the northwest, clearer in the south.

Outlook for Sunday and Monday:
Showers will continue in the far northwest on Sunday but most other places will be largely dry and sunny, with winds decreasing. It will be mostly dry and settled on Monday with high pressure dominating, though feeling rather chilly overnight.
