

Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0700 on Sunday 06 Dec 2009

++ Valid for broadcast at 0858

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
Heavy rain in eastern parts of England will clear by midday then most parts will see some sunshine. It will be quite windy with some blustery showers, mainly in the west. Overnight will stay windy with further showers in western parts. These will become heavier and merge by dawn.

Outlook for Monday and Tuesday:

A spell of heavy rain and gusty winds will clear England and Wales during Monday with much of Scotland and Northern Ireland staying dry. After a chilly start in eastern parts further wet and windy weather will spread to all parts during the day.

(C) Crown Copyright 2009. Published by the Met Office.