Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
Sunny periods for many but feeling cold in brisk northwesterly winds. However, there will be further showers, especially in the west, with snow over the hills. However, they will become less frequent later. Temperatures falling sharply after dusk, widespread frost overnight.

Outlook for Tuesday and Wednesday:
Bright and frosty start Tuesday. However, wet and windy conditions, and milder temperatures for a time, in the northwest will push southeastwards through the day. Becoming colder, very windy in the northwest later. Sunny spells and blustery showers Wednesday. Showers will fall as snow over the hills, and perhaps wintry to lower levels in the north. Remaining very windy.
