++ Valid for broadcast at 2159

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
Persistent, often heavy, rain will affect many parts of the south, before easing to the southeast through the evening. However, southwestern England will brighten up with heavy showers developing. The best of the conditions will be across northern England, Northern Ireland and Scotland with sunny spells. Feeling cold in the rain and breeze in the south.

Outlook for Friday and Saturday:

A fine day on Friday for many with sunny spells. However, outbreaks of rain will spread into northwestern parts, and push southeastwards as a weakening feature overnight. This will clear the southeast early Saturday with brighter conditions following with blustery showers in the northwest.
