++ Valid for broadcast at 2159

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
It will be a bright but cold start to the day across Scotland and Northern Ireland, although across the Northern Isles there will be frequent squally showers with the risk of hail and thunder. Elsewhere, it will be a cloudy and damp start, but most should brighten up except for across south-east England.

Outlook for Wednesday and Thursday:

Wednesday and Thursday will be predominantly dry with sunny spells and light winds for most. In the sunshine it will feel warm, however there will be some chilly mornings with patchy fog and rural frost. The far north will be breezier at times with occasional rain.
