Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
Another showery day, with many parts seeing further heavy, slow-moving and perhaps thundery showers. There is a risk of some torrential downpours, and perhaps hail, particularly in western Britain. Sunny spells will be most prevalent in the drier Southeast, although heavy showers are still possible here, particularly later.

Outlook for Monday and Tuesday:

Showers again on Monday. The showers generally lighter and more isolated in western areas, although heavy, thundery downpours are still possible in the east. On Tuesday cloud and rain is expected to spread northeastwards across the south of the UK. Drier in the north, although still with a few showers.
