

Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0700 on Saturday 20 Dec 2008

++ Valid for broadcast at 0858

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
More rain for Northern Ireland, northwest and central England, upland Wales and later southwest Scotland. Mainly cloudy, mild and breezy further south, with sunny intervals. Chilly but sunnier across the rest of Scotland and northeast England. Increasingly windy and wet across Scotland and northern England tonight, but mainly cloudy and mild elsewhere with drizzle in the west.

Outlook for Sunday and Monday:
Generally mild, cloudy and windy on Sunday, with rain towards the north and west. Less windy and brighter towards the south and east on Sunday, and brightening-up in the far north later. Mainly fair Monday, though cloudier and locally drizzly in the west.

(C) Crown Copyright 2008. Published by the Met Office.