++ Valid for broadcast at 0858

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
Today will feel cold again in a brisk north wind. Gales will blow down the English east coast. There will be showers, mainly in the east, but reaching further inland than yesterday. The showers may be wintry on hills. The cold northerly winds will continue overnight, bringing gales to the southeast.

Outlook for Monday and Tuesday:
Winds will die down on Monday but it will stay rather cold with night frost. There will be sunshine, but also showers in the east, perhaps wintry on hills. Tuesday will start dry but rain will gradually move east with snow on high ground in the north.
