Headline:

Becoming brighter. Heavy showers developing with localised thundery downpours.

Today:

Brighter spells will break through during the morning. However, showers will develop as well, these becoming heavy in places with the risk of localised thundery downpours especially in central, southeastern and eastern parts.

Tonight:

The south and east will become largely dry, but with showers spreading across the northwest.

Outlook for Saturday:

Sunshine and scattered showers in south. Showers more frequent in the north.
