Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
It'll be a fine start to the day tomorrow for many of us with patchy cloud and plenty of sunny spells, with temperatures heating up. Some isolated heavy and possibly thundery showers will affect southern and western parts of England and Wales through the day, with more persistent rain affecting Northern Ireland and into the evening Scotland as well.

Outlook for Sunday and Monday:
Sunday and Monday will be largely dry for the majority with plenty of sunshine, though a few showers will develop but these will be fairly isolated. Into Monday a more organised band of showery rain will push into the far south.
