++ Valid for broadcast at 2159

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
Other than a few morning showers, most parts will start dry with some sunshine developing for a time. However, heavy rain will move into Northern Ireland through the morning, then push into most of Scotland, Wales and western England by the evening. Winds will touch gale force in exposed parts of the west.

Outlook for Saturday and Sunday:

Overnight rain will become slow-moving across southeast Britain on Saturday, and may linger here for much of the day. Elsewhere, the sunshine will return, along with some showers for the northwest. Further rain may affect western areas on Sunday, but staying largely dry further to the east.
