Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
Staying unsettled, with further blustery showers, mainly in the north and west, where they maybe heavy and thundery at times, possibly turning a little wintry over northern hills. Rain and very strong winds will spread across central and southern parts of England and Wales, with gales or severe gales along some southern coastal areas.

Outlook for Saturday and Sunday:

The unsettled theme continues into the weekend, with wet and windy weather edging northwards on Saturday. Generally drier and brighter for many on Sunday, with perhaps a few showers. However, there is the chance of further rain and strong winds across the far south during Sunday.
