Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
Away from the southeast it's going to be a cloudy start with some coastal fog in the west and hill fog further inland. Things should turn brighter in the north as sunshine breaks through, and patchy rain across central parts will ease. Some showers may develop in the warm southeast, and these could turn heavy, possibly thundery.

Outlook for Saturday and Sunday:

Saturday will be fine for most, before a band of rain sweeps into the northwest later on. This will push south and eastwards across most parts by Sunday morning. Drier weather will follow leaving a fine end to the day for many.
