Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
Cloud, rain and strong winds across western Scotland and Northern Ireland will spread southeastwards to other parts of the UK through the day. Ahead of this conditions will be sunny, and the southeast will stay dry throughout. Clearer, showery conditions will then push into the northwest later.

Outlook for Sunday and Monday:

Rain will clear southeastwards during Sunday morning. Colder, windier, and showery conditions will then follow across the UK. The showers will fall most frequently in the north and west and will turn wintry, mostly over hills. The showers will continue on Monday, although they will gradually ease, and it will become dry later.
