Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:

Wet and windy in northwestern parts with winds expected to reach severe gale force in western and northern Scotland. There will also be rain in Scotland, Northern Ireland, Wales and parts of northwestern England and this will be heavy at times, clearing southeastwards later. It remains largely dry elsewhere with some sunshine and will become warm in the southeast.

Outlook for Wednesday and Thursday:

Becoming more settled on Wednesday and Thursday as high pressure dominates the weather. Winds will ease and it becomes dry with some long, sunny periods. There is also a chance of mist or fog patches forming under clear skies overnight.
