Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
Thick fog will affect central and eastern parts of England and east Wales during the morning, lifting slowly into low cloud by the afternoon. Elsewhere there will be some sunshine. However, showers will affect northwest Scotland, and some more organised outbreaks of rain will gradually feed in across southern England and Wales. It will generally remain mild.

Outlook for Wednesday and Thursday:

Northern areas will be rather cloudy with patchy rain on Wednesday. Elsewhere a mix of sunshine and heavy showers is expected. On Thursday it will turn wet and windy from the west. Meanwhile temperatures will stay mild for the time of year.
