++ Valid for broadcast at 0858

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
Many parts of the UK experiencing sunny intervals and scattered showers throughout the day. Some of these will be slow moving and heavy, especially over the northwest. Showers also merging at times, giving longer spells of rain. Strong winds across southern areas, easing by the evening. Overnight, showery rain continuing across northern areas, with southern areas experiencing some drier periods.

Outlook for Saturday and Sunday:
Remaining unsettled, with sunny intervals and scattered showers. Some showers heavy and thundery over northern parts of the UK. Southern areas likely to see the best of the dry conditions, also beginning to feel warmer here in the sunny intervals.
