

National Severe Weather Warning Service

Chief Forecasters Assessment

An unstable, warm and humid airmass originating from the continent will cover the region during Thursday. In these situations, developments are very finely balanced as to whether heavy showers or thunderstorms will break out or not. Although many places may miss the worst, where thunderstorms do occur they could give some locally torrential downpours.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Rain

Valid from 00:05 on Thu, 20th Jun 2013 until 23:55 on Thu, 20th Jun 2013

There is a low risk of isolated thunderstorms breaking out across southeast England, East Anglia and the east Midlands during Thursday from the early hours onwards giving some intense downpours. These could give 15-20 mm of rain within an hour and 40 mm within 3 hours very locally. However many places could stay dry.

The public should be aware of the risk of localised surface water flooding.
