Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
Southeast England will start the day cloudy with rain, some heavy, this clearing during the morning. Otherwise it will be a mainly dry and bright day with some sunshine, though with a few showers in parts of the north and west. Windy at times, with temperatures around normal.

Outlook for Friday and Saturday:

Mostly cloudy, wet and windy on Friday, with the heaviest rain likely across Southern Scotland, Northern Ireland and Northwest England. Brighter for Northern Scotland and parts of Eastern England. On Saturday there will be a mixture of sunshine and blustery showers across the country with fresh to strong southwesterly winds.
