Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
It will be a cold and frosty start for many with some isolated icy patches. Dry with light winds at first, but it will turn wet and windy from the southwest again in the afternoon. Windy, but gales mostly confined to coasts and high ground.

Outlook for Monday and Tuesday:
It will remaining unsettled, but will be less stormy than of late. Windy on Monday with coastal gales and further showers at times, these most likely in the north and west. There will also be some sunnier interludes too. Tuesday will be similar, but the wind will have eased. Mild, frost free nights.
