

Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0700 on Wednesday 03 Jun 2009

++ Valid for broadcast at 0858

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom until dawn tomorrow:
Southwest England and South Wales will have another very warm day with a good deal of sunshine. Elsewhere it will be a much cooler and cloudier day than of late, although most parts should stay dry. The evening and night will continue dry with a good deal of cloud.

Outlook for Thursday and Friday:
Thursday will be a cool and rather cloudy day. Southern England, the Midlands and Wales should stay dry but a few mainly light showers are expected further north. Cool and cloudy again on Friday with the showers becoming more widespread across the country, and heavy in places.

(C) Crown Copyright 2009. Published by the Met Office.