Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
The rain will continue to move slowly north, reaching southwest Scotland during the afternoon. It will be increasingly brighter further south but with scattered showers, locally heavy and thundery and possibly some hail. Wintry showers to the north. Milder than recently, and winds generally light.

Outlook for Friday and Saturday:

Sunshine and showers on Friday, still a risk of hail and thunder in the south and west. Turning milder through the weekend, but windier with a risk of gales on Saturday, particularly in the west. The best of the sunshine will be in the east but more cloud and rain, at times heavy, further west.
