

Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1945 on Friday 08 Feb 2013

++ Valid for broadcast at 2159

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
Most places will have a cloudy start to the day, although there may be a little brightness in some eastern coastal areas at first. Rain will affect many western areas and will move into central areas during the day. There is a chance of some sleet or snow as this rain pushes into cold air in the east.

Outlook for Sunday and Monday:
Rain will affect many southern and western parts on Sunday, with potentially disruptive snow developing over some central, northern and eastern areas. This snow may become more widespread for a time, but should be mainly over the northeast by Monday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2013. Published by the Met Office.