++ Valid for broadcast at 2159

Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
Showers across north-west England and Scotland at first gradually becoming confined to northern Scotland during the day. A few scattered showers developing across south-west England and Wales, the odd moderate one, especially during the afternoon. Elsewhere will see a drier day with variable cloud and sunny intervals.

Outlook for Monday and Tuesday:

Patchy rain across western parts on Monday, and whilst central areas will be cloudy, eastern parts should see the best of the bright spells. This rain becoming heavier and more persistent later in the day and spreading erratically eastwards overnight and through Tuesday accompanied by strong winds. Brightening up in the west later.
