Here is the forecast for the United Kingdom for daytime tomorrow:
Becoming bright at times in many central and eastern areas as rain clears away into the North Sea, although continuing over eastern Scotland until midday. Scattered locally heavy showers in the southwest of England and Wales will spread eastwards and northwards through the day, becoming persistent in the far southeast of England. Sometimes brisk or strong southerly winds.

Outlook for Thursday and Friday:
Thursday will continue unsettled with showers or longer spells of rain. Feeling cooler as well with brisk northwesterly winds. Many western areas will be dry and bright at first, but rain will spread to western areas later and to eastern areas overnight.
